

Extra Credit – 3points

My primary criteria for evaluating the midterm is how specifically your answer addresses the question that is posed. The comments I handed back with your exam on Thursday relate specifically to this point.

Here are additional criteria I use when evaluating midterm exams:

Do you provide information from the readings?

Does your response maintain focus or get sidetracked by tangents?

Do you present information in a clear and organized manner?

Do you avoid distracting grammatical errors and spelling problems?

Keeping these criteria in mind, you may choose to revise your essays for an additional 3 points of extra credit (1.5 points per question). A perfect exam score is 20 points making extra credit not insignificant. If you choose to revise, your revisions are due on the last day of class, December 17th. I am available to meet with you if you would like to discuss your revisions. Send me an e-mail, we'll set up an appointment.
